“CONTROL-A-FOAL” GREAT SUCCESS AT KOORINGAL STUD

Control-A-Foal is a simple, safe and effective harness that can be fitted to your foal on day one, allowing the handler and foal stress free interaction.

KOORINGAL Stud is currently working with the inventor Tim Forster who has extensive international experience and knowledge working not only within the thoroughbred industry, but with many different breeds. His work has taken him to Europe and North America as well as Australia. Tim has seen a world wide need for the handling of foals in a safer and more relaxed manner.

The unique design of Control-A-Foal allows the foal to experience strapping that it will inevitably encounter in its later years. Using a back pad with handle, chest, breast and girth straps and a strap around the hind quarters, the foal learns to relax and be less reactive.

As this 2007 season unfolds Kooringal Stud is incorporating Control-A-Foal in the handling of all foals born from day one. Aiming to be used in all areas from leading between paddocks, yards and stables, daily check-ups, medicating of sick foals, teaching the foals to pick up feet and in the transporting of mares with their foals when it is required.

Control-A-Foal has been developed to reduce the stresses of handling young foals from day one up until 2-3 months of age enabling a more manageable environment.

EQUINE INFLUENZA

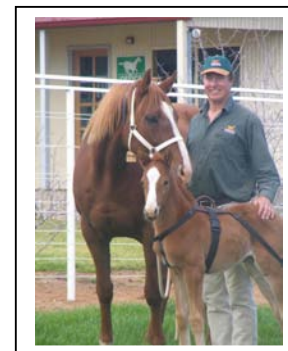

Kooringal Stud has of course been in lock down since the outbreak of E1. Fortunately the south of the state has remained clear of the problem and all horses are in wonderful health.

We are totally in the hands of the Department of Primary Industry at this stage and are hoping that the ban on movement of horses will be lifted soon.
