

WEANLING HANDLING UNDER WAY

The weanling handling process is well under way with several groups of graduates already enjoying the life of luxury in the lucerne paddocks at Kooringal. The weanlings are once again proving to be calm and cooperative with each new task presented to them. Once again, Peter Cowell is educating all of the weanlings at Kooringal, giving them a thorough education including leading, tying-up, standing for farrier work, brushing, responding to different stimuli such as walking on different surfaces and remaining calm around a rustling chaff bag.

MUCH NEEDED RAIN ARRIVED

Fabulous rains arrived early last month, absolutely drenching Kooringal and the Wagga area. Over 120mm fell in 24 hours, giving the soil as much moisture as it could take, which has set us up for some lovely pastures this year. The permanent lucerne paddocks are up to the horses knees, and the newly sown paddocks have begun to emerge which will ensure more than enough feed through winter and spring.
